

"Plein Air Watercolor Painting"- Thursday evenings, 6:00pm – 8:30pm, July 10 – 31, 2008

This class meets at the end of long summer days to paint the beautiful Vermont landscape as it appears in evening light. Painting "en plein air" became popular with the Impressionists who wanted to observe and record the unique light effects that only occur outdoors. We will do as the Impressionists, sharpening our skills in observation and recording as well as enjoying the outdoors during the marvelous – and too short(!) – summer season. Instruction in this class is very much one on one and will focus on specific techniques for successful watercolor painting – both outdoors and in. The class is appropriate for painters at all levels – beginner to advanced. We will meet at a different location in the Bennington area each of the four weeks in order to observe and paint beautiful scenery and evening light. The class focuses on watercolor, but other media are welcome.

Cost is $100 for the 4 week session.
