

EVENING LANDSCAPE IN WATERCOLOR

EXPLORE HOW COLOR AFFECTS LIGHT AND MOOD LATE IN THE DAY

ABOUT THE CLASS

We'll explore important aspects of color – value, intensity, and temperature – and how they affect our sense of light and mood in the evening landscape.

The class will be a combination en plein air/urban sketching and studio class.

The first half of class will be spent outdoors, creating sketches of the landscape in evening light.

The second half will be in the studio, where we'll explore ways to enhance light and mood with contrasts – light vs dark, bright vs dull, and warm vs cool – for maximum effect.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR

Tony Conner's energetic approach to teaching and enthusiasm for the watercolor medium are combined to create classes that are both fun and informative. He excels at providing information and insights to individual students – meeting them where they are and helping them get to where they want to go.

Tony is a Signature Member of both the New England and Vermont Watercolor Societies, and an Artist Member of the North Shore Art Association and New York's venerable Salmagundi club. He works from his studio in Bennington, Vermont.
